Property Description

Casa Itzu is easy to notice. What makes it worth owning goes far beyond what you can see in the photos. This modern home in Ojochal offers three bedrooms, two bathrooms, a dramatic double-height living room, a private swimming pool and beautiful mountain views. Its clean architecture is elevated by real teak and cenízaro wood, bringing warmth, character and a level of craftsmanship that is increasingly difficult to find. Casa Itzu was not built to be the cheapest option on the market. It was built for buyers who understand the difference between attractive finishes and genuine quality. Every decision was made with long-term durability in mind, creating a home meant to age well and be enjoyed for a lifetime. The double-height living area gives the interior an impressive sense of space, while the connection to the pool and surrounding mountain landscape creates the relaxed indoor-outdoor lifestyle people come to Costa Rica looking for.
